

Multiple Choice and True/False Test
Becky Samitore-Durand

1. All actions on this list are examples of academic dishonesty except
  - a. copying from a classmate
  - b. creating fictitious data to support a point
  - c. chewing gum in class
  - d. using another author's words without appropriate credit

2. To avoid running out of time on a test, you should
  - a. write quickly, even if it's not so neat
  - b. stick with a difficult question until you get a right answer so that you don't have to come back to it later
  - c. spend time reviewing the entire test before you start to budget your time
  - d. frequently ask your instructor to tell you how much time is left

3. Beds are a good place to study because they are comfortable and quiet.

4. It's smart to schedule a specific and consistent time for studying for each course.

5. When assessing time left on an exam, you should move to those questions you think you can still answer accurately within the remaining time.

