

Cause and Effect

Tracy Derrell

In reading, cause refers to why something happens. Effect refers to what happens as a result. One cause can result in multiple effects. And while the effect always follows the cause, you might find when you read that the effect is presented before the cause.